

runninghot!

| | | |
|---------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Name | Dr Theresa Wilson |  |
| Current Employment | Section Manager for Animal Genomics at AgResearch with staff at the Otago University Molecular Biology Unit in Dunedin, and at its Invermay and Ruakura sites. | |
| Education | <ul style="list-style-type: none">✿ BSc (Hons) Biochemistry (Otago)✿ PhD Biochemistry of plants (Otago) | |
| Work History | Post-Doc in the States (Plant Biochemistry and Molecular Mapping), second Post-Doc Wellington School of Medicine (Cell signalling using Xenopus oocytes model), Scientist at AgResearch Wallaceville researching bovine tuberculosis and then moved back to Dunedin for Animal Genomics research in 1999. | |
| Awards | C. Alma Baker award for research conducted at the Albert College of medicine, New York. Royal Society of New Zealand Rutherford Bronze Medal for research on drug resistance in mycobacteria - 1995 | |
| Quirky facts | Her other interests include hanging out with her two dogs while working in the garden and she always travels with at least two or three novels in her backpack. | |